Subject: Displeasure with Microsoft Settlement

As a user of Microsoft products and an active computer product consumer, I was incredibly disappointed by the anemic settlement that was reached with Microsoft. While I think a break up might not have been the answer, clearly Microsoft is an unrepentant monopolist and the sanctions as outlined will do little if anything to curb their tactics.

I'm writing to say that I strongly support the pursuit of harsher sanctions against Microsoft. Anything that fails to address the Microsoft tactic of adding functionality² to Windows and killing competition in that market is too weak and anti-consumer.

Thank you for your time.
